Marettimo, the mountain island. The most remote of the Egadi. No roads or cars. A rock in the middle of the sea, a crossroads of people since ancient times, the scene of epic battles and migrations. Sailors, fishermen, scholars, explorers accompany us on this journey into the folds of this pearl of the Mediterranean. Discovering a population anchored in traditions and in love with its land and its sea. Of a wild nature, almost inaccessible and of a mysterious path. We experience the thrill of an archaeological discovery that moves the clock of history back thousands of years. And finally, spectators of a daily and immutable ritual, we linger in the alleys and at the port; the fishermen return at dawn and the village wakes up: the human comedy can go on stage.
